Clean Colostrum = Healthy Calves

Ask your veterinarian about possible free culturing of colostrum to check for bacterial contamination. Between June 20 and July 31, our veterinary clinic has a special offer for culturing services. This is an introductory offer for dairies not already participating in a colostrum culturing program.

This is an opportunity to confirm that your colostrum is wholesome and clean at no cost to the farm. Interested farms should call the clinic to obtain a colostrum sampling pack – five sterile sample tubes and instructions for collecting and handling the samples appropriately.

A great resource is available at Atticacows.com→Calf Facts→”Ten Points to Reduce Colostrum Contamination” to help evaluate your colostrum management procedures.
